Holbein Watercolours

Dedicated to excellence, Holbein, the principal supplier to the world's oldest professional Watercolor market, offers a 108-color range of moist transparent watercolor of unsurpassed purity, permanence, brilliance and transparent watercolor, Holbein watercolor also preserves the brush handling qualities inherent in traditional Japanese watercolor techniques. Without ox-gall, other animal by-products or other dispersing agents, Holbein watercolor moves slowly, thus permitting greater color density and brush control. It is a color line with a consistent creamy texture that remains smooth when dry without cracking, crumbling, chipping or molding in the palette. It may be re-wetted easily like a pan color. For this reason Holbein does not produce watercolors in pan form but allows artists to create their own selection. Fill the wells of a suitable palette with the desired color selection. Permit to dry, then wet the color when needed. Holbein watercolors produce brilliant transparent washes as well as powerful clean darks when used in more concentrated applications. Engineered to surpass the quality standards set by both North American and European manufacturers, Holbein watercolor is widely preferred around the world for its handling qualities. Holbein watercolor ranks as the world's finest.

Michael Harding Oil paints are made by hand, using techniques which date back to the days of the Old Masters. There is a very simple reason for this painstaking process. Michael Harding as an artist and painter wanted to create colours that were true and vibrant, and paint which was beautiful and durable. The greater the pigment content of a paint the greater the resistance it has to fading. Nearly all manufacturers use various fillers to extend the volume of the oil paint. He totally refuse to do this. Why make something exceptional and then dilute it? Michael Harding will not claim that his paints will turn you into a great painter, but he can promise they will have a profound effect on your work. Your colours will be stronger and richer, and you will find the texture of the paint incomparable. You will love working with them. Try them. You will be amazed. Quiller Watercolour Brushes

Pure Sable or Kolinsky is the finest way to make a watercolor brush. Coming up second is a hi-tech fiber and production method that rivals some of the finest Sable Brushes. Back 25 years ago, nylon or other synthetic fibers would make a fair student brush. Today with advanced technology we can achieve a brush that almost matches the finest Sables. Our 7000 Series is our current generation of advanced synthetic brushes. To design this 21st century brush we enlisted the aid of a renowned water media painter, Steve Quiller as our guide. Years ago synthetic brushes were not much more than chopped up fishing line bundled up and stuck on the end of a handle funny. They were horrible for the user, especially for the young student who often received this budget-priced creation. Today we have the ability to taper the strands of fiber so that each strand comes to a fine point. With careful selection of 11 different weights of fiber strands we can gently mix these into a marvelous brush head. The mixing of the weights is critical. With just the right amount of thicker fiber you can get just the right amount of hard snap to the brush. With the perfect mixture of a variety of thinner fibers we arrive at the perfect color carrying blend.
